

Community, Whānau & Patient Advisors

- Do you want to get involved to improve health care in the Southern district?
- Do you want to have a say in how things happen and help the Southern health system understand what you need from health services?
- Community, whānau and patient advisors are people who collaborate with health staff to bring about health reforms.
- A community, whānau and patient advisor operates at a high level within the Southern health system interacting and influencing staff and participating in codesign aimed at improvements in planning, delivery, monitoring and evaluation of health services.
- The people we are looking for want to be involved in the decisions made by the health service with the aim of building a better health service for everyone.

If that sounds like you, please complete the form on the next page.

How can advisors participate in a project?

- The Community Health Council maintains a database of people who want to be engaged and support our health system here in the Southern district.
- The database will help identify advisors who are best suited for particular projects based on their areas of interest, experience and available time.
- People on the database will be called up to participate when areas of interest are matched to a specific project. The Project Team will confirm which Advisor(s). It is expected this will operate much like a jury service.
